Considérez

The majority of French people would probably prefer to live in a city. Why do you think that this is true when so many North Americans would rather live in the suburbs or in the country?